

Landline Phones - FCC

This is referencing to the Federal Communication Commission (FCC) about this docket and others similar. I DO NOT, let me say this again, I DO NOT agree with the government and the FCC push to get rid of landline phones. As a CenturyLink customer who gets their service via land line service, this is the only way I want my service to communicate, call for emergency service, shop, daily survival, etc... This service of using landline phone service is vital to the needs of my health and well-being. As a CenturyLink customer I do not approve of the government removing landline phones and I will petition that the government to reverse any and all removals of landline phones. Landlines are vital and by getting rid of them not only are you hindering people from being able to call for emergency help, take Hurricane Sandy and how long the lines were for people to make phone calls. Someone who has a heart attack would die due to this inhumane treatment of getting rid of landline service from every home in America. Landlines are reliable and safe and many at home businesses use and require people to have landline phones and hardwired internet for their business operations. This decision to remove landline phones is not only detrimental for people's lives but is also detrimental for businesses to operate.
